CHARLES FAWCUS

says: He wouldn't go there for a day out

It's love and hate for Fred

FRED WINTER won't be at Cheltenham today—not surprisingly, you might think, in view of the disasters that have befallen him there in the past.

However, this time Fred will be keeping away for one simple reason: he has no runners. And a tractor wouldn't be able to drag him to the races for a day out.

Fred told me: "Cheltenham on a quiet day is marvellous, but this meeting is chaotic. I come only because I'm lucky enough to have horses good enough to run."

Haven't his past experiences put him off racing horses at the meeting altogether?

"It was sad to lose those two great horses last year, but you have to come if you've got good horses," he replied. Fred's love-hate relationship with Cheltenham has been going on almost since he began training in 1964. It is typified by what has happened in the Gold Cup.

Wrong

Twice Pencil had what looked to be certain victory snatched from him and Bula was beaten on two other occasions.

Last year things began to go wrong from the start. The heavy ground got hold of The Dealer in the first race and he finished third, just behind a horse he had beaten out of sight a few weeks earlier.

Then Bula fell and lay prostrate on the ground.

"I thought he was dead," recalled Fred, "but eventually he hobbled into a horsebox on three legs."

"We knew he wouldn't race again, but he began to make a recovery and we put him out in a field for a happy retirement."

"But because he could only use three legs he had to be helped to his feet all the time."

"He began to get weaker and weaker and three months later we had to have him put down."

Cheltenham landed an even bigger blow two days after Bula's fall when rising star Lanza-rote was killed in the Gold Cup.

"It was amazing, he just broke his hind leg high up where the bone is thickest," said Fred.

The Cheltenham luck this year has turned slightly sour with The Dealer being ruled out of almost certain victory by leg trouble.

Rival

But Fred's runners will all be feared, particularly Double Bluff and Happy Warrior tomorrow and Rodman in Thursday's Daily Express Triumph Hurdle.

Fred's Gold Cup hopes rest on Midnight Court, second favourite and rated the only rival to Fulke Walwyn's Fort Devon.

"I think I'll be second to Fort Devon, but I'll win it next year," said Fred.

TV SPOTFORM ANALYSIS: LACSON (2m.) has been on odds-on at Leopardstown (2m.) and Naas (2m.). Took some smart hurdlers in the Erin Fords Champion Hurdle at Leopardstown (2m.) last month and ran a fine race in finishing a two-and-a-half-length runner-up to Prominent King (3m.). Difficult to oppose on that effort.
FLAME GUN has made steady progress and must be given a sound chance on his effort in running Banora (2m.) to half a length at Thurles (2m.) last month.
SILVER BUCK, having won four races on the trot, had his measure taken in the Persian War Novices Hurdle at Cheltenham (2m.) in January, being beaten into fourth place behind Ballylawn Lake.
TARBANK proved a clever four-length winner from Remany Furlong (levels) at Sandown (2m.) last month. Looks the type to continue on the upgrade.
