

Dawn delight

Rap for Dermot

By TIM RICHARDS
DERMOT BROWNE returned to a rollicking from boss Michael Dickinson after winning the Waterford Crystal Novices Hurdle on Browne's Gazette.

The Irish amateur punched the air three times as Browne's Gazette strode up the hill to an easy victory. But Michael said:

"Footballers usually score the goals and punch the air afterwards. Dermot hadn't reached the winning post when he started. It was a stupid thing to do and I told him so."

Dermot was unable to join in any celebrations as he dashed straight into the jockeys' sauna before riding Planatman, who finished fourth in the Kim Muir.

CHARMAIN HILL was up in the air after Dawn Run's Waterford Crystal Champion Hurdle triumph yesterday—literally.

The 65-year-old owner was lifted shoulder high by jubilant Irish punters after Dawn Run's ultra-game effort.

She was presented with a bouquet of roses which she waved to the crowd in a victory salute.

Mrs Hill was almost overcome by the emotion of the moment which even got a lady of her calibre.

The veteran owner rides Dawn Run at exercise every day and is prevented from riding in races only by the Irish Turf Club, who decided she was too old just after she'd partnered Dawn Run to her first win at Tralee two years ago.

"I just wish I could have ridden her today, but we'll try her over fences next season," said Mrs Hill.

Her husband is a doctor in Waterford, so the glass part of yesterday's prize goes back to its place of origin.

One challenger after another had a go at Dawn Run yesterday but couldn't wear her down. The last one to throw down the gauntlet was 66-1 Cima, who loomed up danger-

Dawn Run takes the last on the way to victory

The Irish go crazy

She said: "Having seen Very Promising run, I'm sure Gaye Brief would have won. He has that extra sparkle."

Mercy gained some consolation when Gaye Chance won the stayers' hurdle. Gaye Chance will now take on Dawn Run at Aintree.

Broomy Mack put in a performance packed with Grand National promise when landing the Kim Muir Chase, won last year by Aintree runner-up Greasepaint.

IRISH cheers nearly stopped Dawn Run from winning the Champion Hurdle.

That could so easily have been the disastrous and ironic end for us as we blazed our way round the final bend.

Thousands of my fellow countrymen shouted us home, causing their darling Dawn Run to lose her concentration. She wondered what the deafening roar was all about and pricked her ears as we galloped towards the cauldron of packed enclosures.

For one frightening second I thought she might be going to stop. The noise made her lapse at the last hurdle and we didn't land running.

But by then I knew we'd win. Dawn Run was tired—who wouldn't be after leading most of the way in the Champion—but I knew she would never give up.

I gave her a few slaps trying to straighten her as she veered towards the challenging Cima. But there was never any real problem as her courage took over on the climb to the line.

I let her do her own thing throughout the race and she was happiest that way. She's a very special lady.

We all know how good Dawn Run is, but will we ever find out how brilliant she is? Is there another hurdler around able to press her?

Mullins lines up a double

By TONY SWEENEY

PADDY MULLINS stayed out of the limelight at Cheltenham yesterday.

Even going so far as to tell me in response to a query about future plans for his Champion Hurdle:

"Dawn Run will decide that for herself, but I have entered her at Liverpool."

Today could be another Mullins day as Street Angel (2.15) and Macks Friendly (4.40) could both be winners for Paddy as a trainer and for his two jockey sons, Tony and Willie.

Tony rides Street Angel in the Sun Alliance Hurdle and as a second-season hurdler this one has more experience than most.

He finished behind Straight Air at Fairyhouse in a handicap, but now meets Straight Air on 10lb better terms.

On the score of versatility there will be nothing to touch Macks Friendly in the four-mile National Hunt Chase.

Since the beginning of the year he has won a Flat race, a hurdle and two Chases in Ireland.

If the Cheltenham fences don't find him out he could have too much speed for his rivals at the end of this marathon slog.

Kilkieween, a flop at Thurles last time, had previously won three handicaps in style. Jim Draper believes that he has him back to form for the National Hunt Chase (2.50).
